

Can life be understood by computers?

- Introduction to Bioinformatics in the Reiwa Era

Laboratory of System Bioinformatics (Kinoshita-Nishi Laboratory)
Research Building #3 – Electrical Engineering and Applied Physics Room 508

 <https://www.sb.ecei.tohoku.ac.jp/index-en.html>

It is said that genomic differences between human and monkeys is just one percent in terms of DNA sequences.

However, can we tell how the one percent sequence difference differentiates human from monkeys?

- Real data analysis with Python.
- No prior Python experience is required, as we will teach Python from the basics and use AI tools to support analysis. Students interested in data analysis or biology are welcome.